I received your August 22, 2014 communication, including two letters which are presumably intended to convey the nature of an ongoing, but escalating, business dispute concerning management/ownership of the “Old Venice Café” restaurant asset.

The information received tells me nothing about the basis of your position, the source of your authority, the articles and by-laws of Old Venice Café, Inc., the ownership of interests at play, or the course of dealings over time that can assist interpretation of a contractually-based entitlement, if any.

More importantly, it appears that you are currently represented by counsel. As such, it would be improper for me, under California’s Code of Legal Ethics, to insinuate myself into this disagreement without the express consent of your current counsel of record. Nor would such a role be of interest absent the appearance of an overreaching injustice.

I wish you my best – love the pizza at Old Venice – I live up the hill!
